SUPT. WILSON MAKES STARTLING DISCLOSURES

Clearly Illustrates Impossibility of Elevating Standard of Oklahoma Schools With Inefficient Teachers.

(Special to Tulsa Star)

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., July 16.—In a recent letter issued to County Superintendents, R. H. Wilson, State Superintendent of Education, calls attention to startling conditions in the matter of qualifications of teachers employed in Oklahoma, and points out the impossibility of raising the standard of the schools through the employment of inefficient teachers. In March last the State Superintendent sent out an inquiry to the various County Superintendents with reference to the qualifications of teachers employed in schools not having the four year high school course. The result of the inquiry, excepting Lincoln County alone, is as follows:

177 teachers are college graduates; 724 teachers are normal school graduates; 474 teachers have attended college but have not graduated; 1,274 teachers have attended normal schools but have not graduated; 2,273 teachers are only high school graduates; 2,553 teachers have not finished high school; 1,325 teachers have no high school, normal school, or any other kind of training.

Referring to the last named and described 1,325 above, the Superintendent calls attention of the county officials to Article 14, Sec. 288, Page 58 of the 1919 School Laws, which provide that after 1918 no person shall receive any certificate unless he shall have had either academic training equivalent to one year in an approved high school, or ten weeks' training in some school especially equipped for the training of teachers. Prof. Wilson adds these teachers are all teaching in the rural districts without supervision and asks, is it any wonder our schools are failing. He insists that all County Superintendents maintain a strict standard not only with regard to those who receive certificates by examination, but also those who obtain credits from state institutions. He urges that the justness of these credits be fully established. He is emphatic in his demand that no teacher be employed in schools where there are eighth grade pupils unless possessed of a first grade certificate.

This circular of Superintendent Wilson will most likely create consternation in some educational circles and if rigidly adhered to by county officers and boards of education will also bring about many vacancies for properly qualified teachers to fill with increased salaries. It is well to note also that there must be quite a large number of belittled professors perched on the rostrum in various parts of the state as Prof. Wilson says in this circular that there are only 177 college graduates employed in the state. Those of our group hit by this edict of the State Superintendent are not dedicated, as there is no separation in the education as to race.
